Mega · Liberty on Sunday: 12/4/18 Michael

Smerconish discusses the aftermath of the violence in Charlottesville, Virginia, arguing that the country is better off without white supremacists. He gives his advice to President Donald Trump on how to repair the damage. This week's Liberty on Sunday guest is Michael Smerconish. "Where is the sense of justice and fair play and balance between the right of free speech and the right of people to not have to be exposed to offensive things?" "The First Amendment is the First Amendment of the First Amendment. If people feel offended by anything, it is their problem. Freedom of speech means nothing if you don't mean it, and you don't mean it you shouldn't be allowed to say it." "The premise of the First Amendment is that people don't have the right to be offended. If you're offended by something then, it's up to you to leave the building. And if someone has a right to say something, then it's your right to tell them to get off the platform." "The media made Trump's victory for him, and they want to keep him making a fool of himself. So they want to punish him with 'fake news.' Make him look like a fool, especially on Charlottesville and keep on making this point." "An authentic real first amendment has to start with the premise that people have the right to be offended. If you're offended by something then you have the right to leave the building. And if you're offended by what somebody says, then you have the right to tell them to get off the platform.” What do you think? Do you agree with the premise of the First Amendment? Sound off in the comment section below. 2 hours of sleep and this is what I see - ayberk ===== jacquesm This is really interesting
